WHEELING PEOPLE RECOMMEND TANLAC

W. E. Dexter, of Wheeling, Tells Why He Recommends Tanlac to All for Stomach Trouble.

THOUSANDS JOIN IN PRAISING NEW REMEDY

"My wife first got me to try Tanlac because she had been reading what it was doing for others who were troubled as I was and sure enough she guessed exactly right, for now since taking Tanlac I have a very good appetite, my stomach feels all right and I'm feeling better in general and I'm gladly joining the many others here in Wheeling who recommend it since Mr. Renfrow came a few weeks ago to introduce Tanlac through C. H. Griest."

It is said the American people overwork, overeat, worry, fume and hurry through life at express train speed until it is no wonder old nature permits toxins (actual poisons) to enter the system. Food sometimes is improperly assimilated and generates gases, causing headaches, constipation, indigestion, pains in pit of stomach, intestinal tract, and when in this condition it is only natural that one should lose weight, energy, ambition and appetite and the nervousness which is apt to follow causes a person to very often spend sleepless, wakeful nights. Kidney and liver ailments sometimes add to the sufferer's troubles and all in all this alarming condition arises from our present day methods of living, is dangerous.

For years, medicines were principally designed to allay and soothe pain or so deaden the nerves that the sufferer might imagine at least for a time they were cured, but Trimbach's newly perfected purely vegetable remedy was designed to correct and remove the cause of stomach, kidney and liver ailments and a representative is present daily at Farrell's Drug store, two doors above the Odeon Theater, to explain more about this truly remarkable preparation, which, in thousands of tests, has proved so uniformly successful and efficient. Tanlac is one dollar per bottle at Farrell's.—Advertisement.

manently, it will prove almost ruinous to the coal industry of the state. The rehearings started Wednesday on a secondary case, but closely related to the main, or Great Lakes freight case, upon which hearings are to begin next Monday. The present hearing is on the equity of the rates of the Central Traffic Association.

The burden of proof falls upon the railroads in these cases, and the testimony now being offered is from their side. It is testimony of a highly expert, technical and statistical kind. Both questions and answers are written, and the proceedings are far from being interesting or understandable to outsiders. The hearing in these cases will last for months, very probably being adjourned from time to time, and held at various convenient places. The present hearing is presided over by Examiner Marshall, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

There were nearly 100 lawyers, coal operators and railroad traffic experts present when the hearing opened. A number of the operators and several of the lawyers are from West Virginia. S. B. Davis, of Charleston, attorney for the public utilities commission, is one of the latter. J. F. Cree, of Wellsburg, is representing clients in the northern Panhandle; Z. Taylor Vincent, of Huntington, down-state coal companies, and John Marshall, of Parkersburg, the state board of trade. Congressmen Cooper and Littlepage, who are interested in seeing the state's greatest industry protected, are attending the hearings whenever they find the time to leave their duties on Capitol Hill.

Senator Goff offered an amendment to the Senate Judiciary bill to fix the annual salary of the clerk of the court for the Southern district at $4,000, the same as the bill fixes for the clerk of the Northern district. The bill carried $500 less for the Southern district, or $3,500 salary. The difference was caused by the fact that the basis for fixing the salaries of clerks was the gross receipts of the various offices in 1915. During that year Judge Keller was absent and no business was transacted, which caused a falling off in receipts. This and other plausible reasons are assigned in a brief with the amendment by Senator Goff, who confidently expects that, after the facts are understood by the senators, the salary for both district clerks will be fixed at the same amount—$4,000 a year, in lieu of fees. The pending bill is S. 1,412, fixing the salaries of all clerks of federal courts.

The Virginia debt commission is reported to have held a meeting here Tuesday. The nearest confirmation of the report is the fact that there was a conference of Wall street and Virginia lawyers, whose chief interest and business for a few years back has been to get a judgment against West Virginia and getting the judgment satisfied. In this instance, as in others, they seem to meet under the name of the "Virginia Debt Commission." The members of that body seldom or never put in a physical appearance at these meetings. The best information obtainable as what was done was that nothing was done. It was decided to wait to see if West Virginia will make a move soon in the direction of paying $13,000,000 with interest or evading it. As a matter of fact, the Virginia attorneys are in disagreement as to what step to take to force West Virginia to take some action. The lawyers in the conference declined to talk about it for publication, or privately for that matter, to the newspaper men.

There are three Cooper in the House of Representatives, to-wit: Edward, of West Virginia; Henry Allen of Wisconsin; and John G. of Ohio. That there are three of them proved news to the Rev. Thomas Garner, editor of the Williamson News, a Democratic newspaper, when he received a telegram informing him of the fact. Editor Garner read in the press dispatches that "Mr. Cooper" agreed with Majority Leader Mann that the president's last message to Germany was a "piece of political bunk." Seeing that, Editor Garner who is one of those interesting rabble-rousers whose daily text is the familiar "stand-by-the-president" argument clincher, attacked Congressman Edward Cooper for uttering such "treasonable" sentiments. That gentleman countered with a telegram to Editor Garner which read: "Your paper, April 24, attacks me without any foundation."

That gentleman countered with a telegram to Editor Garner which read: "Your paper, April 24, attacks me without any foundation."

There are three Cooper in the House of Representatives, to-wit: Edward, of West Virginia; Henry Allen of Wisconsin; and John G. of Ohio. That there are three of them proved news to the Rev. Thomas Garner, editor of the Williamson News, a Democratic newspaper, when he received a telegram informing him of the fact. Editor Garner read in the press dispatches that "Mr. Cooper" agreed with Majority Leader Mann that the president's last message to Germany was a "piece of political bunk." Seeing that, Editor Garner who is one of those interesting rabble-rousers whose daily text is the familiar "stand-by-the-president" argument clincher, attacked Congressman Edward Cooper for uttering such "treasonable" sentiments. That gentleman countered with a telegram to Editor Garner which read: "Your paper, April 24, attacks me without any foundation."
